1. The first step is to identify the main components of the system. This involves a thorough review of the system architecture and the data sources. The next step is to determine the data requirements for each component. This is done by analyzing the data flows and the data formats used by the system. The final step is to design the data integration process. This involves creating a data integration plan that outlines the data sources, the data formats, and the data integration process. The data integration plan should also include a data quality control plan to ensure that the data is accurate and consistent.
